Recording of Losses and Revision to Earnings Estimates in Light of Structural Reform

Mizuho Financial Group, Inc. (the “Company”) hereby announces that it expects that losses arising from the Company’s efforts to promote structural reform will be recorded in its financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019.

The Company resolved at the meeting of the Board of Directors held today to revise the previously announced earnings estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019, as follows.

Please note that the estimate for annual cash dividends per share for shareholders of common stock remains unchanged.

1. Recording of losses in light of the Company’s efforts to promote structural reform

The Company plans to announce, in May of this year, the next-term business plan commencing from the fiscal year ending March 31, 2020, which it is currently formulating, taking into consideration the fundamental structural reform announced in November 2017, and which will set forth the basic policy of the structural reform in three areas, i.e., business structure, financial structure and management foundations.

In formulating the next-term business plan, the Company expects that losses (totaling approximately 680 billion yen¹) that were not contemplated in our previously published earnings estimate will be recorded in the financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019 in respect of the Company’s principal consolidated subsidiaries in Japan, i.e., Mizuho Bank, Ltd., Mizuho Trust & Banking Co., Ltd. and Mizuho Securities Co., Ltd., for the following reasons:

(1) Impairment losses on fixed assets (approximately 500 billion yen)

Since the implementation of the in-house company system introduced in fiscal 2016, our group has been endeavoring to enhance the sophistication of its management accounting capabilities to support the in-house company system and plans to apply such enhancements in connection with the next-term business plan. Such endeavors result in some changes to management accounting which affect the application of impairment losses on fixed assets. We are also revising our future earnings plans, branch network strategy, etc., of each business area pursuant to the next-term business plan. We expect that these revisions, combined with the management accounting enhancements mentioned above, will result in impairment losses on fixed assets, including software attributable to the domestic retail business division and branches that are scheduled to be closed, which are to be recorded as Extraordinary Losses.

¹ We are in the process of determining the extent of the negative impact that the factors described in 1. above will have on our US GAAP consolidated financial statements for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019.

- (2) Losses pertaining to the restructuring of securities portfolio, etc., in markets division
(approximately 180 billion yen)

Amid growing uncertainty in financial markets, with an aim to achieve a more stable earnings structure as well as a solid financial base that is capable of responding to changes in the business environment, the Company will implement the restructuring of its securities portfolio in respect of past investments in foreign bonds, etc., made by the markets division. In addition, the Company plans to enhance the sophistication of its derivative valuation methods, including by more precisely reflecting the counterparty risk of the individual parties to relevant transactions in determining the fair market value of the transactions. The losses, consisting primarily of loss on sales related to securities, are expected to arise as a result of the foregoing initiatives and are to be included within Ordinary Expenses.

These figures are estimated as of today and will not be finalized until the financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019 are determined.

2. Revision to consolidated earnings estimates for fiscal 2018 (the fiscal year ending March 31, 2019)

For the reasons stated in 1. above, the Company has revised the published consolidated earnings estimates for fiscal 2018 as follows.

| | Profit Attributable to Owners of Parent (in millions of yen) | Net Income per Share of Common Stock |
|---|---|---|
| Latest announced estimate (A) | 570,000 | 22.47 yen |
| Current revised estimate (B) | 80,000 | 3.15 yen |
| Amount of changes (B-A) | -490,000 | -19.32 yen |
| Rate of changes (%) | -85.9% | -85.9% |
| (Reference) Results for the previous fiscal year | 576,547 | 22.72 yen |

After the revision to the earnings estimates, Common Equity Tier 1 capital ratio*, which is the foundation for performing a stable financial function, is still expected to be higher than the target of the current medium-term business plan, i.e., 10% as of March 31, 2019.

* Excluding Net Unrealized Gains on Other Securities on a Basel III fully-implemented basis (under the current regulations)

The Company has not revised the estimates for annual cash dividends of ¥7.50 per share and fiscal year-end cash dividends of ¥3.75 per share.

3. Future management direction

The outline of the next-term business plan, which is scheduled to be announced in May of this year, is as follows.

We believe that the recording of losses described in 1. above will contribute to these goals.

(1) Approach to the next-term business plan

Under the next-term business plan, we recognize that the structural issues that we face include the need to respond to structural changes in customer needs, resolve the mismatch in the allocation of management resources, etc., that has been arising over many years of business operations, and respond to new customer needs. Based on this recognition, we are considering the reform of our business structure, financial structure and management foundations with a focus on stock business variables and to achieve qualitative changes in these areas. We will aim to create value for our stakeholders through specific business initiatives to be developed pursuant to the reforms in the future.

(2) Significance of structural reform

In the next-term business plan, we will work on “structural reforms to advance our business”, and we consider its significance as follows:

- Shift to next-generation financial businesses based on customer needs;
- Re-evaluate stock business variables and establish a flexible business and earnings structure that is capable of responding to changes in the competitive environment;
- Secure a reserve of management resources for growth by generating new businesses, etc.; and
- Further strengthen financial foundation to withstand crisis situations in preparation for the risk of deterioration in the business environment due to the credit cycle, etc.

(3) Early transformation of earnings structure

Based on our view that the business environment will continue to be challenging for the foreseeable future, we plan to implement currently feasible measures, accelerate the elimination of structural issues, reduce earnings volatility, and further solidify our stable earnings foundation.

(4) Priority business domains

Based on the structural changes in customer needs due to an aging society with low birthrate, digitalization, globalization, etc., we believe that the priority business domains in which we should aim for earnings growth over the medium-to-long term are as follows.

- For individual customers:
 - Businesses that respond to the growing need for asset building for the future in the era of 100-year lifespan; and
 - Highly convenient services that respond to new needs, such as digitalization and the shift to cashless payment systems.
- For corporate customers:
 - Creation of new forms of partnerships that share business risks with our customers to support corporate innovation and changes to existing industry structures;
 - Businesses that respond to interregional transaction needs in the rapidly growing Asian economies; and
 - Businesses that respond to the growing need for smooth business succession.

In addition, to respond to diversification of lifestyles and changes in societal structures such as the expansion of the sharing economy, we will actively reconstruct our business portfolio through open collaboration with other industries and strategic investments, and expand our customer base and solutions domains in areas where financial and non-financial businesses overlap.

Furthermore, we will promote the “transformation to a new business and working style” to adapt our HR management, IT systems, office and branch environments, etc., in a manner that is conducive to the implementation of these business strategies.
